

SUBSCRIPTIONS THIS AFTERNOON $17,250; COMMITTEE EXPECTS $18,000 BY FINAL CHECK UP

List of Contributors of Amounts From $600 to Five Cents Printed Today—Subsequent List Next

CITY WELL PLEASED WITH RESULT DRIVE

The Community Chest fund at 2 o'clock this afternoon was $17,250. A number of other subscriptions are expected to come in from persons who were out of town yesterday or whom the solicitors failed to see, so the grand total will probably be around $18,000. Any one who has not made a donation is requested to give it to R. K. Judt, or W. E. Frazer at the two banks.

Middlesboro is well pleased over the success of this campaign. It has been put over because every one has worked to that end. The committees in charge the team captains, the team workers and every individual contributor deserves credit for his part in the success.

This list of contributors up to 10 o'clock this morning is being printed below. A subsequent list will appear when all of the contributions are in.

The list of donors to the Community Chest fund follows:

City of Middlesboro, $600; Helburn Family, $275; Big Ben Mfg. Co., $250; Elks Club, $250; Sterchi Bros. and Tennant, $250; J. C. Richardson, $250.

The following gave $200 each:

J. R. Hoe & Sons, Allen Lumber Co., F. D. Hart, Jr., J. P. Bosworth, A. H. Rennebaum, Fork Ridge Coal Co., Log Mountain Coal Co., Citizens Bank & Trust Co., National Bank, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Robertson.

The following gave $150 each:

A. P. Liebig, Mott Motor Co., Bryson Mt. Coal and Coke Co., Reams Hardware Co., City Lumber and Supply Co., S. M. Reams, R. M. Barry. Judge J. R. Sampson, $125.

The following gave $100 each:

CAREFUL CROSSING CAMPAIGN TO BE REPEATED IN 1923

Last Year's Results Successful—Summer Months Picked for Campaign Because Most Motoring Done Then

LAST YEAR'S TABULATION OF FATALITIES STARTLING

The Nation-wide "Careful Crossing Campaign," waged during the Summer of last year by the American Railway Association, has proven to have been such an effective means for the saving of human life at grade crossings that the movement will be repeated this year with increased vigor. Last year's drive was endorsed by leaders in nearly every walk of life throughout the country, as well as by numerous churches and civic organizations. The campaign is expected to have their hearty approval again and some of the churches and civic clubs have announced their intention of co-operating by assisting in the distribution of the standard poster and placing upon it a sticker bearing the name of the organization fostering the movement.

As more automobile mileage is made during the months of June, July and August than during any other three consecutive months of the year, this period has been chosen for the campaign. The number of automobiles in use by the people of this country is rapidly increasing from day to day and the number of crossing accidents is maintaining its consequent ratio. The number of grade crossing accidents is increasing in proportion to the increase in the number of automobiles. To the person who stops to think, these facts are of serious portent. It is a startling fact that during the year of 1922 there were 1810 human lives needlessly snuffed out at railroad grade crossings! And in addition to those actually killed, of the 5383 more or less seriously injured, there are doubtless many who are worse than dead. Many of these will never see the light of day again, many will never walk, and others will be hopelessly crippled and invalids for the remainder of their lives.

"Stop, Look Listen," Effective

Although there were 105 more persons killed and 515 more injured in 1922 than in 1921, it is reasonable to believe that due to the enormous increase in the use of automobiles in the year 1922, the liberal posting of the "Cross Crossings Cautiously" placards and the use of other safety advertising, had the effect of causing a few drivers, at least, to "stop, look, and listen" before attempting to cross a railroad track. However, if only one life is saved the movement will be worth the effort.

There are two ways to reduce or entirely stop such accidents. The first in the public mind is, elimination of the crossings. This is, as yet, impossible. There are 251,939 highway crossings on Class 1 railroads alone (railroads with revenue of over $1,000,000 annually) in the United States. Of this number 399 were eliminated during 1919. At the same rate of elimination it will take 629 years to dispose of these crossings if no more are added. All the men and money available would not be sufficient to remove the crossings in a life-time. The second method is for the public to "cross crossings cautiously."

Approach Crossings With Care

If every automobile driver would approach every railroad crossing with caution, stopping to look and listen to ascertain if there is a train approaching, there would be but very few crossing accidents, if any at all. Motorists cannot expect trains to stop to allow them to pass. An automobile moving toward a crossing at a reasonable rate of speed can be stopped in a few feet at the farthest and get away quickly, but a heavy train running rapidly cannot be brought to a stop in less than a quarter of a mile. A train scheduled at forty miles per hour loses five minutes when it stops. The railroad, as a rule, keeps crossings in good condition for travel; give reasonable notice of the existence of such crossings; and see to it that engineers do their full duty in warning of the approach of trains, but accidents caused by the violation of these duties have been few as compared with those caused by the failure of travelers to stop, look, and listen. The motorist owes a moral duty and, in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, and many others, a legal

NOETOWN WOMAN DIES TODAY, ILL SHORT WHILE

Mrs. M. J. Ramsey, age 60, died at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Hensley at Noetown, after a very brief illness. She is survived by a son, O. W. Ramsey and her daughter, Mrs. Hensley. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow, the Rev. Jim Browning officiating. Interment will be in the Hensley cemetery.

NEW WHOLESALE CO. ORGANIZED

Moore-Rogan D. G. Co., To Be Located in Alderson Building—Start Business June 10

The Moore-Rogan Wholesale Dry Goods company was organized here last night with a capital of $150,000. Stockholders in this new undertaking are all local men except R. L. Moore of Jellico. W. L. Shelton was instrumental in bringing about the organization. It was understood today. The organization has been pending several months.

The new company has leased the Middlesboro Dry Goods company building, owned by J. T. Alderson. They will probably take over this company's stock and be ready to start business by June 10.

Petition for Articles of Incorporation has been filed and they are expected back soon. When they are returned officers will be elected and the organization made public. Reconstruction of the Alderson building has already begun.

OPPOSED TO NO BUILDING PROGRAM

Louisville Says Conditions in South Are Different From in the East

By Associated Press
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 26.—Conditions in the building industry here do not warrant suspension on or curtailment of all new construction according to George Brinks, secretary of the General Contractor's Association. Mr. Brinks gave this opinion in discussing the action taken by the American Construction Council, a national organization representing all factors in the construction industry, as its act in meeting in New York last week.

At a meeting of Board of Governors, its president, it was agreed unanimously that the country is facing a building crisis, and a program was adopted recommending that all new construction be deferred for several months. That banking interests curtail the after the close of the summer, that wide publicity be given to the increased trend of construction costs of labor and material, and that government, municipal and state construction departments be urged to delay their work as much as possible until September or October.

Already, this program practically has been put into effect in eastern cities, including Chicago, according to Mr. Brinks and the building program is slackening.

Mr. Brinks was a delegate from the local contractors' association.

"Building conditions in Louisville are not comparable at the present time to those in western cities," Mr. Brinks stated. "The whole trouble in the east is brought about unreasonable and arbitrary demands of the building trades unions and their taking advantage of the acute situation in that section by demanding of wages increases that would undoubtedly put the building program on such a high basis a feast that it would prohibit a reasonable and fair return to the investor. In addition there are numerous strikes in effect in the east and there is a fight between capital, labor and contractors, all of which tends to bring disorganization into the industry."

duty as well, to stop, look, and listen for trains at every railroad crossing. He is in much better position to save himself from death and disaster than is the engineer and when this duty is performed by all there will be no crossing accidents.

OLD WILDERNESS ROAD ONE BEST EARLY HIGHWAYS

Run From Hosten River, Virginia, Through Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap, to Mouth of Otter Creek

OPENED JUST BEFORE BEGINNING OF REVOLUTIONARY WAR

By Associated Press
FRANKFORT, Ky., May 26.—The Wilderness Road, running from Tennessee and Virginia into Central Kentucky, was one of the hardest and longest highways known in the pioneer days of America, according to a system sketch of the early roads of Kentucky prepared by J. T. Madison, officer engineer of the department of state roads and highways. It led from a settlement on the Holston river, in Virginia, to the mouth of Otter Creek on the Kentucky river and was variously known as Boone's Trail, Virginia road, according to Mr. Madison. However, the Wilderness Road is the name by which it was met which it was most generally known.

The Wilderness Road was opened just previous to the beginning of the Revolutionary War. An advance army of men, women and children traversed its rough course along Powell's Valley through Cumberland Gap thence to the place known as Crab Orchard. Mr. Madison stated in his sketch of the road. There were probably 25,000 persons who moved from settlements of Virginia over the highway into the edge of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky.

"In the year 1763 the King of England issued a proclamation forbidding anyone to secure a title of lands beyond the headwaters of streams flowing from the west and northwest and emptying into the Atlantic Ocean," Mr. Madison stated. "The citizens of Virginia did not sit idly by, however, but sent an agent named Thomas Walker of Ft. Stanwix, now Rome, N. Y., to enter into a treaty with six nations of Indians for land that Lord Hillsboro, British Secretary for the Colonies, had to contrived to keep them of through the King's proclamation. This treaty marks an epoch in the history of the central western country including Kentucky, became the possession of the Indians."

Indians Battle in Kentucky

The Indians of the northwest and those of the South were separated by the rolling sections of Central Kentucky. Tribes of both of these sections wanted the rolling lands of Kentucky and consequently many battles occurred over them. Mr. Madison stated.

"While Kentucky was still a colony in the state of Virginia there was an act of legislature passed in 1835 providing for the opening of new roads through the state."

After Kentucky was admitted to the union in 1792 its legislature re-enacted the law authorizing the opening of roads within its own boundaries.

"While in 1793 three commissioners, Bennett Pennington, Nathaniel Sanders and Daniel Weisiger were appointed under an act of legislature to receive subscriptions for a fund to be expended in clearing a wagon road from Frankfort to Cincinnati. At that time it was considered that such a road was necessary and that a state fund was needed for clearing the timber, the grubbing and underbrush as the route traversed then was through an unsettled country, which could neither afford the funds nor furnish men for doing the work under county administration. A second act was passed on December 12, 1794 to clear a road starting in the neighborhood of Crab Orchard and ending at the end of Cumberland Gap. The cost of opening the latter road was to be met out of the state funds, which was apparently adequate, for it seems that during the summer of 1796 it was ready for traffic."

Road Law in 1801

"On December 11, 1801 the state legislature enacted a law requiring all inter-county roads to be at least 30 feet wide. If extra width was required in any county the responsibility of providing this developed county court. The necessity of a road from the central part of Kentucky leading to

LUMBERMEN MEET HERE JULY 12-13

Mid-Summer Convention of State Association More for Recreation Than Business

The Kentucky Retail Lumber Dealers' Association will hold a mid-summer meeting at Middlesboro July 12 and 13, it has just been announced. The mid-summer meeting at Middlesboro has been pending since the annual convention but the time was only recently set.

The following letter has been sent out to the members of the association on this matter:

"This is to announce that we are scheduled to hold a mid-summer meeting of the Kentucky Retail Lumber Dealers Association at Middlesboro July 12-13 with headquarters at the Hotel Cumberland.

"Hugh Allen of Allen Lumber Co., Middlesboro, who has been working and planning for a meeting up there for two years or more, now advises us that they have at last decided upon a definite date, that of July 12-13.

"This is to be mainly an outing meeting. There will be one business session on the morning of July 12 and the present plans are that on the afternoon of the twelfth we will visit Lincoln National Park. On the evening of the twelfth we will have a banquet which is to be held jointly with the ladies' night of the Kiwanis Club of Middlesboro. The plans for Friday, July 13, are a trip of the Country Club golf links, then Pineville for lunch, returning to Middlesboro in the afternoon.

"Golf enthusiasts are advised to bring their clubs along, and retailers are invited to bring their ladies and friends, and we will make of it a great social gathering. J. P. Potkus, president; J. C. Taylor, secretary."

FIRST TOLLGATE AUTHORIZED IN KENTUCKY JUNE 1797

By Associated Press
FRANKFORT, Ky., May 26.—The first tollgate was authorized by an act of the legislature on March 1, 1797 when Joseph Crockett was appointed to erect a turnpike, or footpath, on the road leading from Crab Orchard to Cumberland Gap at some place beyond the intersection of the road from Madison courthouse, according to old records just brought to light here.

BACCALAUREATE TOMORROW NIGHT

Union Service at Auditorium—Rev. W. K. McClure Will Preach Sermon

Baccalaureate services for the Senior Class of the high school will be held tomorrow night at the Central school auditorium. The Rev. W. K. McClure will preach the sermon, his subject being "Do Your Best." This will be a union service and the other churches will dismiss their evening services to join in this one. The program, in which the ministers of the other churches will all take part, follows:

Processional; Hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," Invocation, Rev. E. H. Burnside; Scripture Reading, Dr. R. E. Douglas; Prayer, Rev. A. B. Reeves; Special Music, Glee Club; Announcements; music, glee club, sermon, "Do Your Best," Rev. W. K. McClure; Hymn, "He Leadeth Me," Benediction, Dr. Sam P. Martin.

ward Virginia was fit so that the state legislature on December 13, 1902 provided for an opening road from Paris to Mt. Sterling and then to the Big Sandy river. The funds for clearing the timber and grubbing stumps along this route were raised by subscription. "It seems that the subscription appropriate of $1,000 for road purposes was made in December 1, 1821 for the improvement of a state road leading from Lexington to Nashville Tennessee. Because of the thinly populated conditions of the country through which the roads would pass, it was necessary for the state to participate with funds for opening it. This was designed to be the great highway leading from the northwest part of Ohio across Kentucky and Tennessee to the State of Alabama."

DENBY URGES PREPAREDNESS IN THE NAVY

Warns Keeping Ready for Defense When World Is "Full of Menace"—Says Need Never Greater in Nation's History

By Associated Press
NEWPORT, May 26.—Warning that the navy must be kept ready for defense "in a world full of menace," was given by Secretary Denby in an address today. Never in the nation's history, he pleaded, had there been a greater need for "close study of naval science and earnest devotion to duty."

We think in terms of hope for continued peace and we strive through diplomacy backed by power to keep that desired peace, but we must not be blind to facts," we know it is not beyond peradventure that war between great powers or groups of power always involve many other nations. We cannot say with certainty that such a war will not come at any time."

WOMAN'S CLUB LAST MEETING

Nancy Hanks and Pineville Clubs to Be Guests—Interesting Program Planned

The last meeting of the Woman's Club this year will be held at 3 o'clock Monday-afternoon in Kentonva Mall. All chairman of sections and committees will report on their year's work at this time. Delegates to the State Federation will also make reports. Every member is requested to be present.

The Nancy Hanks Club of L. M. U. and the Woman's Club of Pineville and all school teachers have been invited as special guests. An attractive musical program has been arranged.

PLAY OFF ALL GOLF PRELIMINARIES NEXT WEEK

Preliminary golf matches for the president's trophy will be all played off next week, according to F. P. Seales. Contestants have been playing this week on days which the weather permitted and nearly all of them have been eliminated. John Miller eliminated Jim Henderson in the match played Thursday.

COUNTY TEACHERS FOR NEXT TERM TO BE NAMED IN JUNE

PINEVILLE, May 25.—Appointment of county school teachers for the 1923-24 term will be made by the county board of education at the regular meeting Saturday June 22, according to an announcement of the Rev. W. T. Robbins member of the board. On advice of George Colvin, state superintendent, the appointments will be made in the same manner as for the past two years, by the county board, on nomination of the county superintendent.

Applicants for position as teacher should make their application, in writing, to Camie Wilson, superintendent, at the earliest possible date. Mr. Robbins announced, and though provisions of the school law do not make it necessary, Mr. Robbins suggests that applicants, whenever possible, get the recommendation of the local trustee.

FORMER RESIDENT IS CONTRIBUTOR

A subscription of five dollars to the Community Chest fund was received this morning from E. F. Beach of Jellico, unassociated. Mr. Beach, who is the son of Andy Beach, formerly lived here, but for the past twelve years he has made his home in Louisville and Jellico.

A THOUGHT

In the day of prosperity, he joyful; but in the day of adversity consider; God also hath set the end that man should find nothing after him.—Ecc. 7:14.

The ways of enriching are many and most of them foul. Parsimony is one of the best and yet is not innocent; for it withholdeth man from works of liberality and charity.

THE GIANT BEGINS TO AWAKEN

A few months ago a speaker addressing the Kiwanis Club of Middlesboro stated that Middlesboro was a sleeping giant that is just now beginning to rub his eyes and stretch his limbs. Yesterday's spectacular achievement in securing $17,000 for the Community Chest Fund is the first evidence that the speaker's assertion was not a mere rhetorical outburst but a great truth. Middlesboro is now awakening; her citizens have come together in an unprecedented cooperative movement which has resulted in a signal success. A few doubters said it could not be done. A few people refused to give. But anyone who saw the persistent, enthusiastic, indefatigable group of workers yesterday who combed the city for contributions did not doubt an instant that the project would fail. Over and over again yesterday, the leaders of the drive said, "We never saw a better bunch of workers." There were practically no shirkers. It was a complete, unified, harmonious movement in which the heart of the citizens of Middlesboro was as one. We should be prouder than ever of our city, and of our people. We have passed from the small town class where there are petty divisions and lethargic inactivity to the city with a vision and a oneness of purpose. Yesterday was a great day for Middlesboro.

THE SAD CASE OF SMITH

Consider the sad case of Governor Smith who rode into office on a tide of wet votes. All over the Nation the Smith landslide of November, 1922, in New York City was marked down as a wet triumph. New York City was firmly convinced that wine, beer, "red flicker" and yellow would come back when "Al" Smith got to Albany. The New York lawmakers obligingly felt in line and repealed the Mulligan-Gage act, under which the State was supposed to be enforcing the Volstead act and the Eighteenth Amendment. Wet New York naturally supposed that Governor Smith would be pleased. He was not and he is not. He is about the most troubled and unhappy man in New York. The legislature has put him far, far out on a swaying limb. The abyss of national political oblivion opens under him if he signs the repeal, and thereby offers feeble defiance to the Federal Constitution. The knives of his friends, of the people who sent him to Albany and made him all that he is politically, are waiting for him if he vetoes it. Political death waits for him no matter what his decision. Without New York he will be an interesting but not impressive figure in a Democratic National Convention. New York will hunt a new hero if he snatches its hope of liquor from its thirsty lips. Tammany will mark him for a traitor. He is sufficiently labeled as a wet, no matter whether he signs or vetoes, so that dry Democrats will have little use for him, and he has long been in the black books of the Ku Klux Klan, whose citadels are in the Democratic south. The political future of "Al" Smith looked fair and fine six little months ago. Now it is full of pitfalls and wrapped in darkness. He will be damned if he signs and utterly damned if he doesn't.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Questions

ONE—If a ball batted down the foul line, strikes either third or first base, and immediately goes into foul territory, is it fair or foul?

TWO—How does an umpire determine what is an infield fly?

THREE—Does an umpire at any time give consideration as to whether or not an interference is intentional?

FOUR—What was the rule adopted to help prevent the intentional pass and was it successful?

FIVE—If the batsman hits a ball over the fence should the runner be declared out if the catcher put him on the back as he rounds third? How is the coaching rule at third interpreted?

Answers

ONE—The moment a batted ball strikes first or third it becomes a fair ball, regardless of how far foul it may then go.

TWO—It is merely matter of opinion or judgment. Any ball which the umpire believes can be handled by an infielder immediately becomes an infield fly when he so calls it.

THREE—The umpire can never give consideration to the intent on an interference play. If it happens, he must call it.

FOUR—The rule adopted relative to the intentional pass was that the leaving of his position by the catcher, before the ball left the pitcher's hand, entitled all runners to advance one base. It was of no help.

FIVE—No attention should be paid to the act of the catcher when the batsman hits a ball over the fence. The thought of the rule is not to pay any attention to the act of the catcher unless a play is being made on the runner.

Berton Bralley's Daily Poem INCURABLE

By Berton Bralley

THERE'S a guy across the alley has a flute (Toot! Toot!) And that instrument, it seems, is never mute.

There is nothing any enter Than a truly clever tooter Who's been tutored how to toot upon the flute;

But this bird is far from skillful. And his piercing notes are shrillful. With a maddening effect upon the ear; And we shudder and we shiver.

And our nerves are all acquirer At the devastating discords that we hear.

THERE'S a guy across the alley has a flute (Toot! Toot!) If he plays upon it longer we shall shoot!

Not a single note's a true one. Every warble is a blue 'one Like a screech-owl with a cold who tries to hoot.

Oh the sounds that he's emitting Keep our teeth forever gritting. He's a pestilential nuisance, that goll-loot;

And each day he toots it longer. As his lungs are growing stronger With the exercise he gives 'em on that flute.

Off the guy across the alley HAD a flute. But we calmly went and massacred the brute;

In the grave we sought to hide him. With his instrument beside him. But I've heard it said by people of repute.

That a sound to chill the tissues Nightly from the graveyard issues. It's a ghostly shriek that makes the timid scout;

And it's said by those who hear it It's the young man's stubborn spirit Which is playing ghastly discords on the flute.

(Toot! Toot!) Making other corpses restless with his flute!

I don't believe Sally dear that you and Sam have ever been good friends. All your letters and what you have told me lead me to think this.

A man and woman, you know, can love each other devotedly and never have an idea of real comradeship.

Sam, I presume, just now is in a receptive mood—at least I should think he would be—and if you are very good to him, if he sees that you are the one that he can turn to under any circumstances, I am sure if he does recover his eyesight he will be more ready to take advice from you. He must know now how dependent he is upon you.

However, my dear Sally, don't reproach him now. Nothing you could say would be as hard as the things he is probably saying to himself. What he wants now is sympathy and petting and a little pity for "men are only boys grown tall, you know," and the most successful wife is the one whose love for her husband has a great deal of the maternal in it.

Be very sure, however, to tell him—in a perfectly innocent way without any comment whatever—exactly what his boss said, not forgetting his criticism of Sam.

I don't think you will be surprised, Sally dear, when I tell you that because of your letter and Leslie's letter I refused a proposal of marriage to the man who took me motoring yesterday.

I told him I was not yet sure that we loved each other enough. Of course he protested that he loved me enough and that he would make me love him. Men are so sure of their ability in this direction.

As I could not explain to him that two of my friends had just come to me with very perplexing and disquieting experiences in married life, which made me "stop, look and listen," he finally let the matter rest by saying that in a few months he would ask me again.

I hope by the time you receive this letter, dear Sally, that things will have smoothed out for you. I believe most thoroughly if you could adjust yourself to Sam, so that you could be good friends with him, things would straighten out.

I hope you are old fashioned enough, Sally dear, to have read and remembered your Longfellow. Anyway, I will remind you:

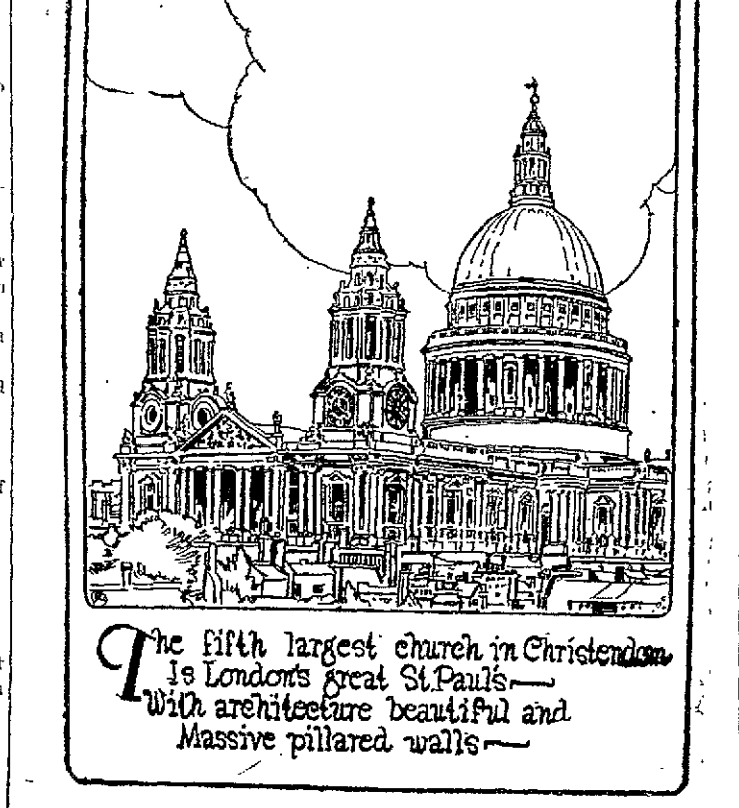

"Into each life some rain must fall. Some days must be dark and dreary."

Love, BEE.

COURAGE

Because I hold it sinful to despond.
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears, but look beyond
Its tumult and its strife:
Because I lift my head above the mist,
Where the sun shines and the broad breezes blow.
By every ray and every rain drop
I'm blessed
That God's love doth bestow.
Think you I find no bitterness at all?
No burden to be borne, like
Christians' pack?
Think you there are ready to fall
Because I keep them back?
Why should I buy life's ills with cold reserve,
To curse myself and all who love me? Nay!
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives them every day
And in each one of these rebellious tears
Kept bravely back he makes a rainbow shine;
Grateful I take his slightest gift,

no fears
Nor any doubts are mine.
Dark skies must clear and when the clouds are past,
One golden day redeems a weary year;
Patient I listen, sure that sweet at last
Will sound his voice of cheer.
Then—vex me not with chiding: let me be.
I must be glad and grateful to the end.
I grieve you not your cold and darkness—me
The powers of light befriended.
Celia Thaxter.

HILL MAKES HIT AT KNOXVILLE

Addresses Human Interest Class Baptist Church on Stewardship Thursday Night

Proof that T. R. Hill is appreciated outside his home town as well as in it is shown by the following item from a Knoxville paper:

If Russ Hill, of Middlesboro, Ky., were an evangelist instead of a successful business man, Billy Sunday would find in him a real rival when it comes to speaking with forcefulness, earnestness, rapidity and a thorough understanding of his subject. This was the way he impressed several hundred members of the Human Interest Class who heard him at a banquet Thursday night at the Whittle Springs hotel. Mr. Hill is teacher of one of the largest Bible classes in Kentucky and all hearing him could easily see why young men flock to such a live wire and leader.

His subject was "Six Cylinder Stewardship," and like a machine gun in action, Mr. Hill outlined these requisites, speaking so rapidly that no scribe could have taken down all he said, but each word, with force and like a bullet, hitting the bull's eye.

First he emphasized the importance of self-forgetfulness in order to be a servant of God. Then he urged that four-flushers be eliminated, "some of these men who just go into the church for convenience sake." Third, he advocated losing part-timers, the kind who work so long as it does not interfere with their program or touches their pocketbook. Fourth, "you must see Him and not yourself; you will find yourself just in so far as you lose yourself."

Loosening up on some "forms" was next urged. "Especially did he suggest that no attention be paid to theories. 'If some one is crazy enough to believe that his grandfather swung from a tree by a tail, then leave him alone. Men interested in God's work will not heed these theories. God's doctrine should not be mucked up with anything. There are a lot of preachers running around talking about evolution and other theories when they should be teaching the Bible. Preach the Gospel and the theories will take care of themselves.'"

In concluding, Mr. Hill advised that "we get absolutely sold on this business of Jesus Christ. If this was done we could shake the world." A man may acquire fame, but unless enthused with religion, has failed.

"Getting on fire for Jesus Christ," was the appeal made by Mr. Hill as he closed and all who had heard his address and seen him in action were convinced that the Middlesboro man epitomizes this recommendation.

NEAR QUARREL OVER MECHANO

"Lady," Found to Be Local Man—
Wizard Does Musical Stunts
Last Night

At Mechano's invitation for women to come up on the stage to make him smile last night, a "lady" started to go which act precipitated a quarrel between her and the husband. The latter declared he would divorce her if she accepted the invitation. She had her way, however, and was soon on the stage.

Dressed in a pink evening gown, pink hat, white shoes and stockings she was far from displeasing in appearance. She tickled Mechano and tried various ways to make him smile. Mechano removed the importunate "woman's" wig and Tim Scay, sales manager of the Middlesboro Motor company stood revealed. It was a very clever impersonation, almost every one thinking it was a woman.

"I have been on exhibition all over the world," said Mechano, "and have had thousands of people to try to make me laugh. No one will ever know how near I came to laughing last night. If Mr. Scay puts forth the same efforts to sell cars as he does at making love it should be easy for him to sell them."

Mechano played two harmonicas last night at the same time, one with his mouth and the other with his nose. Other novel musical numbers were rendered. One of the largest crowds that has ever been present was there last night, the big garage building being packed.

The auto parade today was a success. Twenty-five Studebaker cars, led by Mechano and Miss Evelyn Stevens in the new Big Six, went through town and to Pineville. All the cars were decorated in many colors. Owners of Studebakers fell in line with the parade thus signifying that they were satisfied with their Studebakers. After they returned the cars were again placed in the garage for the auto show tonight. The exhibition which has been well attended all week will come to a close tonight.

Of course, money doesn't grow on trees. But if it did you wouldn't stand like this, smiling as it fell through your fingers. You'd have your hat off catching it—or a wheelbarrow.

The point is that when we have to work hard for money, we should think hard before we spend it all. Don't let it slip through your fingers. Save some.

AMERICAN LEGION ESSAY CONTEST

Subject This Year "Why Should America Prohibit Immigration For Five Years"

By Associated Press
LEXINGTON, Ky., May 25—Rules governing the national essay contest to be conducted this year by the American Legion have just been received here by E. W. Randle, chairman of the State Americanism Committee which will have charge of the contest in Kentucky. The subject this year is: Why should America prohibit immigration for five years. The contest begins May 25 and ends October 12, according to Mr. Randle.

First prize in the contest will be $750; second $500, and third $250; while in every state there will be silver bronze medals and certificates of merit issued to the highest rating writers. The cash prizes, awarded to the National winners, may be issued only as scholarships in colleges designated by the winners. All girls and boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen years, inclusive are eligible to compete. Each must submit an essay, not more than 500 words in length on the subject designated.

Copies of instruction have been mailed to all superintendents in the state outlining the method of procedure in the contest. Last year more than 50,000 students took part in the contest and plans are being made to consider at least five times that number this year.

Each school superintendent will appoint a committee of three to select the best essay in each county. The winning essay in each county then will be mailed to the Department Americanism Chairman of the American Legion not later than midnight Nov. 1. The state superintendent then will make three judges who in turn will select the three best essays submitted by the county committees. The best essays in each state then will be judged by a national committee and the national winner made known.

LYNCH ITALIAN COLONY ORGANIZES VERDI SECRET SOCIETY

HARLAN, May 24.—The Italian colony of Lynch has organized a secret society known as the "Giuseppe Verdi" in honor of the great Italian composer of that name. The society, organized some weeks ago by Angelo Meccia and Joe Mesdai, now has a membership of two hundred.

The society plans to invite the Italian ambassador to Lynch this summer and to try to get the Italian government to establish a consulate in Lynch.

HARLAN NOTES

The following announcements have been received here: "Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lausman announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Katherine, to Ludwig R. Fisher, Friday, May the twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and twenty-three. At home, Bowling Apartment, Harlan, Ky."

Ted McDowell will leave Thursday to attend the Engineers' Carnival and ball at the University of Kentucky, Lexington.

PRIZE ESSAY BY ROSE HILL GIRL

Wins W. C. T. U. Prize on Subject Advantages of Non-Smoker Over Smoker

ROSE HILL, Va., May 25.—The following essay, written by Miss Anna Samsong of Lee County Industrial School, Bowling, was awarded the prize, given by the Rose Hill W. C. T. U. for the best essay written on this subject by a pupil in the seventh or eighth grade:

The Advantage of a Non-Smoker Against a Smoker

The use of tobacco became popular in England through the influence of Sir Walter Raleigh, and the custom of using it spread rapidly through Europe in the seventeenth century. At first it was thought to have medicinal value, but in a short time men of intelligence and high position came to think of it as a dangerous drug and became alarmed as to the consequences that would follow its wide spread use.

But after people have found that it is so dangerous they still use it knowing that they are being killed gradually by it day after day. In the United States people spend more than four hundred million dollars a year for it. Of course if people spend their money in this way they will be compelled to go without food, clothing, furniture, books, music, and other things that are for their health, comfort, and richness of life they ought to have.

Tobacco relaxes the muscles, affects the nervous system and damages the mind. The trembling that may be seen in the hands of almost any one who smokes cigarettes to excess shows in a very marked way how tobacco interferes with the control of the muscles. Because of this effect tobacco users are not good workmen with a rifle, and many of them are unable to do delicate work, and cigarette smokers are unable to get a job where the non-smoker can get most any kind of a job he wants. A boy who smokes cannot learn as fast as one who does not. Smokers are not allowed in athletic games for they are not strong and give out quickly cannot run as fast as the non-smoker and are sure to lose the game.

Tobacco steals away the ambition of a boy. Its first effect on the mind is to dull it to test to make one satisfied to sit and watch the smoke curl upward while other things take care of themselves. And when one who smokes gets in trouble the first thing he thinks about is smoking. I suppose this satisfies his mind and keeps him from worrying, but the non-smoker never thinks of such a thing just thinks of some way of getting out of it for he has a sound mind and can think quickly, and can do everything better than one who smokes. A boy who smokes does not want to be in good company but the smartest gang of boys he can find is who he wants to be with, here he will sit and smoke and use bad language and finally become a boy that his mother wouldn't want to claim. The younger boys growing up will take up this awful habit not thinking of the danger that is rolled up in a cigarette.

"King" Ben Purnell, The Youthful Sheikh

MRS. ANGELINE BROWN PURNELL BARNETT STEPHENS (LEFT), WHO SAYS SHE IS FORMER WIFE OF HOUSE OF DAVID LEADER. THE OTHER WOMAN IS MRS. SARAH EVANS, HER DAUGHTER.

PORTSMOUTH, O., May 2.—"King" Benjamin Purnell was a sheik, it seems, long before Rodolph Valentino was born.

His violent protestations of love still ring in the ears of the back woods lass he wooed and won in the mountains of 'ol Kaintuck.

And this despite the fact the fires of that love were extinguished some two score years ago.

The mountain girl, now a woman of 60, is Mrs. Angeline Brown Purnell Barnett Stephens, first wife of the head of the House of David cult.

Picked Wild Flowers
"Ben and I would walk up into the mountains," she testifies. "He would pick wild flowers and tuck them prettily in my hair. Then he would whistle and the birds would chirp love songs."

That was 16 years ago. Which was 30 years before Ben became "seventh messenger angel of the Kingdom of God," and took up his abode at the royal palace in Shiloh, near Benton Harbor, Mich.

Purnell was 18. And she was 15. They were married in Greenup county, Ky.

"Ben was a huckster," Mrs. Stephens continues. He gathered eggs and

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

PRESIDENT HARDING says, in his opinion, if New York as a state can enforce its prohibition law, the result will be "more or less conflict between state and federal authorities."

After prohibition became national, New York, like many but not all states, passed a state law in general conformity with the federal regulation, the idea being that there are not enough federal officials to make prohibition very effective—that the state must help.

The New York Legislature recently passed a bill repealing the state dry law but Governor Smith has not signed the bill yet.

Smith is an avowed wet. Nevertheless many people believe he does not enjoy being forced to put himself on record in this particular way.

He is much spoken of as the next Democrat presidential candidate. If he should get the nomination, everybody will know he regards prohibition unfavorably, yet presumably he will not want to run purely and simply as a wet, which is the way many people are apt to look at it if that issue is over-emphasized.

New York's "Gesture"
LEAVING politics out, it isn't quite clear why the lack of a New York dry law foreshadows "conflict."

There are other states without dry laws. In these states there may have been lax prohibition enforcement, but not "conflict." State officials recognize the federal authorities' right to enforce prohibition if they can.

Federal officials fight the smuggling of merchandise into the country, without state aid. The same thing is true of counterfeiting, the icans, who were kidnapped when Chinese bandits held up the Shanghai-Peking express, are still prisoners in the Shanghai wilds.

What's more, the outlaws are threatening to kill them if the government doesn't give the guarantees. They actually have killed a number of Chinese prisoners to show they mean business.

To be sure, the government has promised the bigwigs all they want but the bandits are afraid the government will break its word.

United States Minister Schurman at Peking has threatened "drastic action" if the prisoners aren't freed.

The trouble is, while the United States can make things very unpleasant for the government, it won't help the prisoners in fact, trouble for the government is just what the outlaws enjoy most.

England and Italy

KING GEORGE of England has paid a visit to Rome. French newspapers speak of it as recalling the visits his father, the late King Edward often paid to Paris when he was framing the "entente" between England and France.

Only this time it's Italy that's visited.

In view of increasing friction between the English and French governments, some of the Paris papers wonder if King George isn't trying to arrange an Anglo-Italian "entente," perhaps not in out-and-out opposition to, but at least quite distinct from the understanding which links France and Belgium together, especially in relation to their Ruhr policy.

Another German Offer

Another thing worries the Paris press.

Dispatches from Berlin say Chancellor Cuno of Germany is preparing a fresh repatriation offer.

The Paris papers say they are afraid this proposition may take such a form as to satisfy England and Italy without satisfying France and Belgium.

Down in Mexico

AN attempt has been made to blow up the United States consulate in Mexico City with a bomb.

Nobody was hurt, but a lot of damage was done.

It looks out also that a similar attempt was made recently against the United States embassy.

It seems certain the perpetrators were trying to prevent American recognition of President Obregon's government.

Some people think they were "reds" who don't want any government at all. Others believe they were reactionaries who want to go back to the old regime, such as prevailed under President Diaz, when great numbers of Mexicans virtually were slaves.

Anything can happen now. Massachusetts landlord left all of his houses to his tenants.

Thedford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine (Vegetable) Praised by the Head of a Louisiana Family.

Lake Charles, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and am sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the 'flu' by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly."

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine."

"We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver."

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has."

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthy matters out of your system.

CHINA'S BANDITS FEAR U. S. MOST

NEW YORK, May 17.—An American who probably knows more Chinese bandits intimately than any other person in the world, says there is little to fear from most of them.

He is Dr. Thomas Coole, Kansas physician, who has just returned to this country after 20 years work in southern China for the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"The attack on the Shanghai-Peking express and kidnapping of foreigners by bandits," he says, "is the most serious anti-foreign action in China since the Boxer rebellion. But it is so unusual, and so contrary to the general attitude of mind among the roving bandits, that it cannot be construed as part of a concerted plan to terrorize foreigners. Most Chinese bandits don't work that way."

In cases of kidnapping for ransom, Chinese officials are usually taken instead of foreigners.

"For them," says Dr. Coole, "the bandits are able to bargain with the authorities for the exchange of chiefs in the hands of the law and comrades in danger of execution."

"Chinese bandits rarely shoot straight and few of them are reckless enough to risk a punitive expedition of native troops. They are even more afraid of foreign forces. That's what makes the kidnapping of the Americans so unusual."

Penniless ex-soldiers and politicians out of favor, make up most of the bands of bandits.

"Broke and out of luck," says Dr. Coole, "these men take to making a living the easiest way they know how. As soldiers they had learned how to murder; and as politicians they had learned how to graft. So they easily work hand in hand."

"While they think little of killing men of their own kind, they are afraid of harming others."

"Christians usually go unharmed. A bible or a prayer book has saved a many a life."

"Many of the Chinese know this, and often carry these books for protection, although they are not believers in the faith."

"At one time the run on these books for passports use became so great, I had to sew little badges on the covers of the converted to mark them from the others."

Dr. Coole has been held up often in China. But he has never been harmed. "One day while I was returning from a long trip into the province of Fukien," Dr. Coole went on, "my train was stopped by a group of bandits. They said their chieftain wanted to see me."

"I told them I was busy. They became threatening and forced me to accompany them."

"Leaving my carriage and coolies behind, I went to the camp behind a stockade a considerable way off the road."

"The chief was most cordial. He apologized for having troubled me. But he had an urgent matter to discuss."

"He wanted to build a Christian church."

"He was insistent. Only after long argument was I able to show him that it would not be feasible for us to use his plunder for spreading the gospel of God."

A few weeks later, Dr. Coole found out the reason for the zeal of the chief.

"He wanted to get back into good standing with the law-abiding citizens," he says. "And he did. He was pardoned by the government, was reinstated, and became magistrate."

"But he soon got into trouble again, and was, according to latest reports, awaiting execution in a Chinese prison at Foochow."

B. W. WHITFIELD PRAISED FOR HIS ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Of course, we all know that Edward P. Arent, Jr., Western Manager of the Bewley-Darst Coal Company, whose headquarters are in Cincinnati, is a real general when it comes to directing his numerous salesmen, and that he is a real salesman himself, when necessary, as it is in times like the present, but back at the mines, at least one of the mines is B. W. Whitfield, who operates the Clover Fork mine, whose output is handled by B. D. Mr. Whitfield has been in Cincinnati the past week, having heard that Pennsylvania operators were trying to put something over on the Kentucky boys on Lake freight rates. Mr. Whitfield has just completed one of the finest homes in Southeastern Kentucky, of ten or twelve rooms with every known modern convenience, combining beauty and "hominess" to the limit—Appalachian Trade—Journal

He Loves To Work
LONDON.—Employers of Robert Joseph, a brewery worker at Burton-on-Trent, have won a 30-year battle to compel him to retire in favor of a younger man. Up until recently he refused to quit. Nothing but work, he said, could satisfy him.
